The Times They Have A-Changed: Creditor's Rights Issues for Estate Planners in a Turbulent Economy

You do estate plans. You don't "do bankruptcy or creditors' rights." Right? Think again. Carl Grumer and Adam Streltzer will discuss important creditors' rights issues often overlooked by estate planners, which can impact their efforts to protect and preserve wealth. They will also discuss many of the methods and tools employed by motivated creditors to maximize their own recovery, and explain the implications for estate planning. They will further discuss the repercussions of 2011's turbulent economic climate and its effect on traditional estate planning.
